The Lawyer's Patron.

St Evona, a lawyer of Britain, went to Rome, to entreat the Pope to give to the lawyers of that country a patron, to which the Pope re plied that he knew of no Saint, but what was, disposed of to other professions. At this, Evona was very sad, and earnestly begged the Pope to think of them. At last his holiness proposed to St. Evona, that he should go round the church of San Giovanni di Laterano blindfold, and after he should have said a certain number of Ave Marias, that the first saint he should lay hold of should be his patron. This the good old lawyer willingly undertook, and at the end of his Ave Marias, stopped at St. Michael's altar, where he laid hold of the Devil, under St. Michael's feet, and cried out, "this is our Saint, let him be our Patron." Being unblinded, and seeing what a patron he had chosen, he went to his lodgings so dejected, that a few months after he died. His reputation for honesty was, however so great, that a witty Frenchman wrote upon his tomb at Rome, "St. Evona un Breton avocat non larron hallelujah."

Instructive Anecdote.

The following remarkable anecdote is extracted from "An Essay on the Science of Acting:"

In the town of North Waltham, Norfolk, 1778, the Fair Penitent was performed. In the last act, where Calista lays her hand on the skull, a Mrs. Berry, who played the part, was seized with an involuntary shuddering and fell on the stage; during the night her illness continued, but on the following day, when sufficiently recovered to converse, she sent to the stage-keeper and anxiously inquired whence he procured the skull. He replied from the sexton, who told him "it was the skull of one Norris, a player, who twelve years before was buried in the church-yard." That same Norris was her first husband. She died in six weeks.

The Discontented Pendulum.

We wish we knew whom to thank for this charming fable. Like thousands of other creditable articles, it is wandering about in newspapers, having strayed away from the owner's enclosure—or rather, perhaps, having been stolen away—without so much a a snipped ear to designate its origin. Our young friends, however, will be amused and instructed by the little vagrant, perhaps as much as if we were able to tell them where it came from. But be that as it may, here is

THE FABLE.

An old clock that had stood for fifty years in a farmer's kitchen, without giving its owner any cause of complaint, early one summer's morning, before the family was stirring, suddenly stopped.—Upon this, the dial-plate (if we may credit the fable) changed countenance with alarm; The hands made a vain effort to continue their course; the wheels remained motionless with surprise; the weights hung as if dead; each member felt disposed to lay the blame on the others. At length the dial instituted a formal inquiry as to the cause of the stagnation, when hands, wheels, weights, with one voice protested their innocence.

But now a faint tick was heard below from the pendulum, who thus spoke:

"I confess myself to be the sole cause of this present stoppage; and I am willing, for the general satisfaction, to assign my reasons. The truth is, I am tired of ticking."

Upon this, the old clock became so enraged, that it was on the very point of striking.

"Lazy wire!" exclaimed the dial-plate, holding up its hands.

"Very good," replied the pendulum; "it is vastly easy for you, Mistress Dial, who have always, as everybody knows, set yourself up above me—it is vastly easy for you, I say, to accuse other people of laziness!—you, who have nothing to do all the days of your life but to stare people in the face, and amuse yourself with watching all that goes on in the kitchen. Think, I beseech you, how you would like to be shut up for life in this dark closet, and wag backward and forward, year after year, as I do."

"As to that," said the dial, "is there not a window in your house on purpose for you to look through."

"For all that," resumed the pendulum, "it is very dark here; and although there is a window, I dare not stop, even for an instant, to look out at it. Besides, I am really tired of my way of life; and if you wish, I'll tell you how I took this disgust at my employment. I happened this morning to be calculating how many times I should have to tick in the course of only the next twenty four hours; perhaps some of you above there can give me the exact sum."

The minute hand, being quick at figures, presently replied,

"Eighty-six thousand, four hundred times."

"Exactly so," replied the pendulum; "well I appeal to you all, if the very thought of this was not enough to fatigue one; and when I began to multiply the strokes of one day by those of months and years, really, it is no wonder if I felt discouraged at the prospect; so after a great deal of reasoning and hesitation, thinks I to myself, I'll stop."

The dial could scarcely keep its countenance during this harangue; but resuming its gravity, it thus replied: "Dear Mr. Pendulum, I am really astonished that such a useful, industrious person as yourself should have been overcome by this sudden action. It is true that you have done a great deal of work in your time; so have we all, and are likely to do, which, although it may fatigue us to think of, the question is, whether it will fatigue us to do. Would you now do me the favor to give about half a dozen strokes to illustrate my argument."

The pendulum complied, and ticked six times in its usual pace.

"Now," resumed the dial, "may I be allowed to enquire whether that exertion was at all fatiguing or disagreeable to you."

"Not the least," replied the pendulum; "it is not of six strokes that I complain, nor of sixty, but of millions."

"Very good," replied the dial; "but recollect that, though you may think of a million of strokes in an instant, you are required to execute but one; and that, however often you may have hereafter to swing, a moment will always be given you to swing in."

"That consideration staggers me, I confess," said the pendulum.

"Then, I hope," resumed the dial-plate, "we shall all immediately return to our duty; for the maids will lie in bed, if we stand idling thus."

Upon this, the weights, who had never been accused of light conduct, used all their influence in urging him to proceed, when, as with one consent, the wheels began to turn, the hands began to move, the pendulum began to swing, and, to its credit, ticked as loud as ever, while a red beam of the rising sun, that streamed through a hole in the kitchen, shining full upon the dial-plate, brightened up as if nothing had happened.

When the farmer came down to break fast that morning, upon looking at the clock, he declared that his watch had gained half an hour in the night.

There is a great deal to be learned from this ingenious little allegory. In fact, dear reader, setting the allegory aside, the clock, toiling on, from hour to hour, from day to day, is one of the best moral teachers we have, if we will but heed its voice. There it stands, steadily and accurately marking the moments of our life, as they flit away. No matter what we are doing—no matter whether we hear its admonitions or not—whether we are industriously and innocently engaged, or whether we are wasting our time, forgetful of God, and of our souls, and the eternal world—the pendulum is still swinging to and fro, and the silent indices are warning us that the minutes and hours of our life are passing away.—They point to eternity. They tell us that soon we shall need these markers of time no longer. While we write, and while you read, the hands on the dial are moving forward. A few more suns will rise and set, and another year is closed. So we are borne onward in our voyage to eternity. Reader! live for the future, as well as for the present. Seek counsel and direction from above: he is your best Friend—your surest, firmest, only hope. He alone can conduct you to happiness. Children, may you feel the value of time. May you be taught to make the most of this life, and to prepare for the end.

Jewish Marriage at Tunis.

(Concluded.)

The bride, who sat in the center of the divan, on an elevated seat, by courtesy, called a throne,* was certainly exceedingly beautiful. But she sat like a statue, the oppressive heat of the sun was certainly enough to exhaust liveliness, if not life itself, from an older and stronger person than Otlingi's daughter was. Besides the poor creature was nearly famished with fasting. I began to scan the features of "the virgins, her companions," which were ten in number; and I almost believe that they concentrated in themselves all the female beauty Tunis possesses. They were extremely well chosen, so as to baffle even a general amorist which to choose. They were rather frolicsome in their conduct.† For when I asked one of them on purpose, whether she was the bride, they all pointed to the almost sleeping beauty on the throne, crying, "She is the queen! She is the queen!" The bride and bridegroom are invested with regal dignity on the day of their nuptials. I said to them,

*Anciently the bride was placed under a canopy of myrtle, called a throne, Kethuboath 17 b; which name is here transferred to the seat.

† Such frivolity in a Jewish bridesmaid in the East, particularly before a strange man, is unplausible.—ED. GLEANER.

"You do not behave yourselves with becoming gravity and seriousness in the presence of your sober quiet queen." They all simultaneously observed, "We are all queens elect, and within a few days we shall respectively occupy a similar position as this now occnpied by Deborah.† We shall be then sober and morose, for, alas! we shall get nothing to eat the whole day." This was said with such wicked looks, and in so arch a manner, and with such mischievous smiles, whilst rosy blushes mantled all their tiny cheeks, for they were all very young, that I could not refrain from smiling, which produced a peal of merriment from the divan: Look at his eyes look at his eyes!" And one and all began to move their little plump hands before their sunny faces,‡ in so quick a manner, that I felt a sudden determination of blood into my head, and I blushed, oh, how I blushed! For the whole congregation of women turned their astonished eyes upon me.

I was, however soon relieved from my painful situation by the approach of the bridegroom, with Rabies and friends. The former carried a magnificent Damascus shawl, which he threw over his intended spouse;‖ while the women, especially the chosen virgins, threw upon the temporary king, raisins, several sorts of spices and hops, calling down at the same time divers blessings upon the young couple. As soon as the bridegroom finished that part of his duty, he was conducted back into the large open square, and placed under a canopy, which was erected for the occasion; it consisted of a large and beautiful piece of rich silk, worked with various designs, and many Hebrew mottos, referring to the rite of marriages. And in the center was the following passage, in very large Hebrew characters: "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning. If I do not remember thee, let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy. The motto formed a square.

Imri Oriel observing that I looked with admiration upon the masterpiece—it was well done—he whispered into my ear: "It is the handiwork of Deborah, the bride." This piece of embroidery had small gold rings, resembling wedding-rings, fastened to its four corners. Four neat wands, about ten feet in length upheld the silk, by means of the rings, which formed the bridal canopy under which the marriage ceremony was consummated, after the following manner I have already mentioned that the bridegroom was placed under the canopy, as soon as he was stationed there, the choir went for the bride, who brought her blindfolded§ to the same spot, and she was made to make seven circuits round her beloved,¶ and then placed at his left hand,* close to the seat she wished to monopolize—the heart. A goblet of wine was then filled for the officiating Rabbi, who took hold of it, and chanted the usual form;

"Blessed art thou, O Lord, our God, King of the universe, Creator of the fruit of the vine.

"Blessed art thou, O Lord, our God, King of the universe, who hast sanctified us with thy precepts, and hast prohibited us matrimonial alliances with our near relations, and to refrain from betrothed ones, and hast permitted us marriage by means of the canopy and wedding pledge. Blessed art thou, O Lord, who sanctifiest thy people Israel, by the means of the canopy and wedding pledge."

The Rabbi then touched the golden cup with his lips, and then handed the cup to the bridegroom, who broke his fast by tasting of the contents, that done, he reached it to the bride, whose face was uncovered for a short time, so that young Yakoub might see whether she was indeed his very bride, Deborah—which is a custom in Israel, to prevent a repetition of Labanic deception.†—After the bride tasted the wine, Yakoub put a gold ring on her middle finger, and repeated the fowllowing formula: "Behold, thou art henceforth set apart to me, by this ring, according to the law of Moses and Israel." A beautiful crystal glass was then filled with wine, and Rabbi D. B.'s colleague pronounced the usual seven blessings.

The officiating Rabbi then tasted of the contents of the cup, and offered it to the bridegroom and bride. The rest of the wine was thrown on the ground, and after it, the beautiful crystal glass which contained it, and the bridegroom, with an effort of strength, stamped it with his foot, and broke it into a thousand fragments, to intimate that as yet joy is not complete, and must not be enjoyed, unmixed with mournin,g for Jerusalem; for as yet is Israel swallowed up and is yet among the Gentiles as a vessel in which there is no pleasure.‡

A collection was then made for the poor Israelites in the four holy cities of Palestine, and the contributions were liberal,as the deputy collector was expected from the Holy Land. Imri aud Youseph contributed five hundred paistres each.‖

The marriage contract was then read and signed. All sorts of sweetmeats, cordial liquors, preserves, &c., followed.

The bride and bridegroom retired into a chamber for a short time, many of the chance visitors returned to their homes; the poor, having received their pleasant portions, went to their homes rejoicing, bearing with them, besides their respective portions of hard cash, agreeable viands for their families;§ many of the guests, also, knowing that the marriage supper was not to commence till late, left for a short time, so that the principal reception chambers remained airy and pleasant. The monotonous and unintelligible buzz, gave place to slow and polite conversation. I observed small detachments discussing various topics; my presence afforded them many themes. Whether I was of Jewish parentage? if not, my acquaintance with Hebrew unaccountable; then my coming from England—a country, which, by her inventions, laughs to scorn the fiercest elements, whose ships defy the winds, and whose chariot-wheels run swifter than a thousand hinds—they attempted to account for all sorts of anomalies and paradoxes. I heard one of a small party gravely assert, that be the skull of an English boy ever so thick, the English tutors would find means to instil the knowledge they determined into the pate of the pupil committed to their charge. Others again discussed Freemasonry; described the lodges as most extraordinary haunts, the inhabitants of most unheard-of things, and Masons guilty of the most outrageous crimes;¶ but accorded that the confraternity live in the strongest bond of union, love, and peace. Many of the Europeans, especially English, belonged to them, and they wondered whether I was a Mason.

I overheard all the conversation of those philosophers whilst I was engaged conversing with the young ladies, the bride's companions. I succeeded, by degrees, in enjoying a very long and interesting discussion with the fair ones about the daughters of Zion, when they were in the meridian of their glory, and contrasted their state then with their present condition, and pointed out to them the inconsistency of their carrying about their persons a variety of charms, * which argued a distrust in their Almighty God, who alone preserved them in the midst of the most overwhelming calamities and persecutions which no race but that of Jacob, could have survived, and simply because of Jehovah's declaration, who said: "Fear thou not, O Jacob, my servant; for I am with thee; for I will make a full end of all the nations whither I have driven thee, but correct thee in measure; yet will I not leave thee wholly unpunished."†

Then they began to tell me a tissue of effects from the evil eye; how many brides actually died, and how many sickened from the baneful effect of an inauspicious eye, and how mauy recovered by means of such charms as were dangling upon them.

Time does not permit me to copy here the marvelous tales with which their ruby lips and sparkling eyes filled my ears and my thoughts. In the midst of their bewitching conversation, the bride returned, with a Jewess, who carried in her hand a splendid tambourine; the bride resumed her seat amongst her sweet and lovely companions, and the lady with her instrument stood on the divan by the side of the temporary queen. The young ladies immediately surrounded the youthful wife, and related to her and to the tambourine lady the parable, which seemed to please them much: and I had the gratification of being beheld with complacency by the queen of the ceremony all the time I was in her presence. The artiste then beckoned to the frolicking girls to sit quietly, which was no sooner intimated than obeyed. All thus became silent and serene. The artiste then waved her instrumet with one hand, displaying both to great advantage, which she followed up by an animated recitative:

"I am about to sing respecting the beloved bride, the queen of this assembly, the blessed and happy, the fair and the pleasant, lovely for delights."

She then made dexterous use of the tambourine, and evidently thrilled into rapture the fair portion of her audience. She went on improvising and accompanying herself, and to my utter astonishment handled the parable in a most masterly manner, expressing an assurance that none of the lovely virgins would so far forget themselves as to fall asleep whilst expecting the king—the bridegroom.—The compliments which the impromptu poetess lavished on all present, were given in the high hyperbolic Eastern style, which seemed to delight every one present. The effect was very striking, and ,to my taste, grand. All the females present joined in the chorus, which consisted of the repetiton of the last distich of each verse, and the signal for it was given by the chief musician, by a short voluntary on the tambourine.

All manner of cordials and sweetmeats were served, in the meantime, in great abundance.

I looked with considerable regret upon the invading night, which compelled me to return to my quarters. I was obliged, therefore, to begin to wish adieu to the hospitable masters of the marriage feasts. Almost all begged that I would stop a couple of hours longer, as the real festive joys had not yet begun, and I would, therefore, not be able to form any idea of a real Jewish wedding in Tunis. I told my kind host that I regretted very much that I was obliged to leave their hospitable society, but assured them that what I had seen that day impressed me with a most favorable idea of themselves, as well as of their feasts, and that they would remain engraven upon the tablets of my memory, never to be obliterated. We then shook hands. Imri Oriel and Youseph Otlingi accompanied Rabbi D. B. and myself part of the way, giving me, en chemin, a description of what we to follow at and after the grand supper which was to take place in the course of a couple of hours after my departure. Two more females were expected to celebrate the auspicious event, one to play sort of a guitar, and another a sort of cimer, and each in their turn extemporize in verse, suitable for the occasion and I was assured that they were very clever at their profession.

‡ Our author forgot that he stated that the name of the bride was Hadassah.—ED. GLEANER.

§ This was intended as a charm, against the עין הרע "the Evil Eve", of which more in our next.

¶ This custom will be explained in our next.

*The silk head cover, which reaches down over part of the face, to protect the bride from the public gaze, but it at the same time narrows her horizon; though such cannot properly be called, as our author does, "blindfolded."

†A symbolical act in allusion to Jeremiah 31 22.

‡ He ought to read to the right; for such is the place of the bride during the ceremony, in allusion to Psalm 45: 9 "King's daughters were among thy honorable women; (ladies of honor, bride's maids,) the right hand stands the spouse in (covered with,) gold of Ophir.

§§ See our editorial "Remembering the Poor" in our last.

¶ Masonry was in very bad odor among the rabbis. They imagined it to be magic, and consisting in a compact with the evil one; hence the power and wealth of masons. In Kurnik, near Posen, there died a Jewish mason, thirty years ago, and they would not bury him in the rows, but on the side. Since that time, Jews are members of the fraternity and the prejudice is removed.

* The ancient Jewish and Christian church es believed in Charms, Talismans, and Magic and the belief is entertained still where the modern crisis has not affecte the belief.

FAMILY VAULTS. *

I.

As the family existed before the (larger) community, so did the family burial ground or family vault exist before the common burial ground. Those families who had estates or means, provided themselves with their own family grounds; it was such as could not procure them that were buried in the common burial ground.

Of separate family vaults and grounds, we find several mentioned in the Bible. Our venerable patriarch, Abraham, when offered, by the children of Heth, the best portion of their burial ground (Genesis 23: 6,) declined the offer and purchased the Cave of Machphelah, for a family vault; and more than three thousand years, under the greatest changes and transitions from possessor to possessor, has the spot been the unmolested resting-place of the fathers and mothers of our race—the family vault near Hebron, containing the sacred remains of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, Sharah, Rebecca, and Leah (at a later date the remains of Joseph were probably added.)

Of others, we read, "And the bones of Joseph, which the children of Israel had brought up (with them) from Egypt, they buried in Sechem, in the plot of ground which Jacob had bought of the sons of Hamor, the father of Shechem, for a hundred Kesitah (Joshuah 24: 52.)

So were the sons of Aaron burid in the property belonging to Phineas, on Mount Ephraim; as was Joshuah on his own private estate.—Ib.

The prophet Samuel, was buried in his own house (tomb) at Ramah (Sam 25: 1); as was Joab, the general of David, on his domain in the wilderness (pasturage ground), 1 King, 2: 34.

The tombs of Jonah, Daniel, Mordecai Esther, Ezekiel, and numbers of other worthies, were all seperate family vaults, not connected at all with the common burial grounds, and they continue so to this day.

Burial grounds were outside the cities. It was the special privilege of the royal family to be buried within the walls of Jerusalem, where the vaults still exist. And there are still around Jerusalem, to this day, numbers of private burials of persons who were able to procure separate vaults.

When our forefathers had to leave their own land, and were driven as a "harrassed roe," from land to land, they found no security for the remains of their cherished dead, except by placing them in one common burial ground—and then the remains frequently were molested by barbarian hands.

It is, since that time, that the separate family vaults fell in disuse among us.

It therefore is not correct to state that separate family plots or vaults are not in accordance with Jewish customs.

II.

PERMISCOUS BURIALS.

Nor were the interments permiscous.

We already showed that in ancient times distinctions of rank were made, but to this day, where the present disorganizing elements have not worked to "lower the high and elevate the low," distinctions are made even in death, not between poor and rich, or man or woman, but there exists an aristocracy of moral worth: and as God distinguishes between good and evil, between superior and inferior beings, so do as always did our people, (where they do not, as they do in this country re-act on the field of religion what the French terrorists and revolutionists acted on that of politics,) distinguish, as far as our judgments allows, between the pious and impious, between the sincere and insincere, between the noble and ignoble, and they bury them accordingly. The remains of the first rows are occupied by those esteemed the most worthy members of the synagogue, by the pious and learned with their familes, and this graduation continues till suicides or other criminals, and they are buried on the side.

III.

EXHUMING THE DEAD.

The great reverence paid to the remains of the departed, as may well be supposed, would dictate the inviolability of the tomb. Thus, the burial ground itself is considered sacred. "On the burial ground, men must not be frivolous: we there neither eat nor drink, nor transact business; we lead no acqueducts through them, nor do we cut herbs growing there, nor send cattle to pasture on the ground; nor dare we make it a thoroughfare of (to shorten roads). However, the fruit growing on trees, planted on burial grounds, may be used." Jorch. Deah. § 363.

The exhuming or removal of the dead is strictly forbidden; the ancients support this inhibition by the text: (Job III 13). "And now I lay down, and was quiet; I slept, and was at rest." And the Joreh Deah § 363 prescribes: "We do not remove the dead from one respectable or humble grave into another of the same kind, nor even from an honorable grave into an humble one,"—except in the following cases:

ובתוך שלו (פי' למקום שהוא שלו, ששוכבין שם בני משפחתו) 'אפי' ממכובד לבזוי מותר, שיערב לאדם שיהו נח אצל אבותיו

"To his own (that is, to his own ground on which his family rest"); be it even from an honorable to a humble grave, it is allowed to be done; for it is agreeable for a man to rest with his parents (relatives).

2. The dead may be removed from their resting place of the different countries to be interred in Palestine.—Ib.

3. If the body was deposed with a view to be removed after a time, (it may be removed.)—Ib.

4. Or in case of apprehension of molestation by barbarous hands.—Ib.

5. Or, those who in case of exigency, (as during the plague) have been buried in a place not appropriated for a burial ground.—Ib. Glossa.

6. Or those who are buried in non-jewish burial grounds.—(Ib. Glossa.)

In all these cases, the exhumation and removal is permitted. Hence, it will be evident that any family who think to make the new German burial ground their final resting place, may remove their members, who are now deposited on the old ground, to the new one at the mission.

We hope that the removals will be attended with that propriety and decorum which are wont to be observed among religious bodies on similar occasions.

* The opening of a more eligible burial ground will give occasion to a number of friends, to a desire of having the remains of those belonging to them removed from the old ground; if such do not conflict with Hebrew customs. Having been asked to quote the regulations on the subject, we lay them before our readers; adding other remarks bearing upon the subject.

FOURTH OF JULY CELEBRATION.—Preparations for the celebration of the anniversary are in progress. The assistance and co-operation of all citizens is solicited by the general Committee of arrangement.

The End of the War.

This is the age of confidence: we mean of self confidence. We all ween ourselves philosophers, phys'cians, divines, astronomers: and what we do not understand, we flatly deny and disbelieve; hence, we know everything. Still there are some men modest enough to ask, and we heard some ask, about what will be the end of the European War. This is asking for omega before alpha; who knows what will be the beginning of the war? Perhaps in this age of curiosity the following may as well pass.—It has come true in part. As to the rest, the reader may dispose of it at pleasure. This text is quoted by the Rev. N. S. Godfrey from Spicer p 159.

"Great changes will take place up to the commencement of the year 1850. . . . . A great revolution will break out in France. The king and his family will be driven out of their country. . . . . From thenceforth there will be no kings in France, but a certain prince will at this time, make yet another attempt to erect for himself a throne."

This prophecy is asserted to have been in the possession of many persons in America, to have been circulated in Switzerland, and suppressed in Austria, before the revolution broke out in France, and a copy was received in Philadelphia from Germany in the month of February 1848. This remarkable prophecy goes on to say, "that Spain and Portugal will be rent by bloody civil wars . . . the parties will compose themselves, the names of Portugal and Spain will disappear, and the States united under the name of 'Pyrenean Republic,' will become great and powerful, both on land and sea. In Great Britain, royalty will be abolished. The different states of Italy will unite themselves into one great nation, and Rome will become the capital of the Italian Republic, for here also, princes will exist no more. Germany is to be a free Fatherland. The kings of Denmark, Sweden, and Norway, will lay down their crowns voluntarily. . . . . These kindred nations will unite themselves into one brotherhood, without any acts of violence, under the title of Scandinavian Republic." We then read, that "about this time, all the nations will rise up against the Czar of Russia. . . . It will be the greatest battle evar fought, and also the last, FOR THEN THE KINGDOM OF GOD WILL COMMECNE UPON THE EARTH. But the kingdom of God is the kingdom of love and justice, and in the name of both these virtues, all nations of the earth will bind themselves in one brotherhood."

CULTIVATED WOMEN.—Sheridan said, beautifully, "women govern us; let us render them perfect. The more they are enlightened, so much the more shall we be. On the cultivation of the minds of women depends the wisdom of men. It is by woman that nature writes on the hearts of men."

Baron Rothschild.

The London Weekly dispatch thus speaks of Baron Lionel de Rothschild, who has again been returned to parliament for the City of London:

The Atlas who can sustain the firmament of the world upon his shoulders, whose brain is powerful enough, whose brain is wide enough to bear the weight of a system of business that gives laws to every mart, and to every exchange; in whose walls ambassadors have to wait their turn of audience; and who can command—who has commanded, with a voice of authority that must be obeyed—monarchs to be at peace and be still; whose gigantic enterprise is developed by industry and commercial intercourse of men in every region of the globe; that man who draws to London the very ends of the earth and makes even this city more famous, a member of whom we may be as little ashamed as if we had preferred Newdegate for his eloquence, Spooner for his liberality, or Bonfield for his proficiency in politeness, and the delicate candor of his charity.

INSANITY.—This fearful malady is alarmingly on the increase in this city. Last week three persons were conveyed to the Insane Asylum at Stockton, and already we can record eight others awaiting the examination of the County Judge.

This is owing to the wild reckless life people whose only object is riches, pleasure enjoyment, without any higher aspiration. We all think of providing for the body, but the neglect of making provision for the soul. But the soul wants food, and if not supplied like the body when under famine, it becomes voracious, preys on itself and swallows indigenial, indigestible food—administer proper food for body and soul, and you preserve both. We have hosts of madmen whose insanity is not vulgarly known.

THE HOUSE OF REFUGE.—Proves a failure from want of confiding the care to persons acquainted with the way how to treat and attract children.

THE FIRST BATTLE between the Austrians and the French, took place at Montebello, in Austria Italy.

The Austrains were 15,000 strong, and made the attack, and after a severe engagement were oblige to retreat. The allied army lost 1,000 men, among whom were many officers, while the Austrian loss is estimated at two thousand.

THE FOURTH OF JULY.—Great preparations are making at Peter Job's, for the Fourth of July. Every body knows the establishment facing the Plaza, on Washington street.

TERRIBLE RETRIBUTION.—R. B. Jones at San Andreas, Texas, received two bullets in his body on a recent Sunday morning, leaving him dead in the public street. It was a terrible retribution for the seduction of the daughter of a widow in the place, whom he afterwards refused to marry.

THE PENDANT SILENCED.—At a dinner party one of the company challenged any person to start a question to which he could not give a satisfactory answer. All were silent, till a worthy clergyman said, "This plate furnishes me with a question. Here is a fish that has always lived in salt water; pray tell me why it should come out a fresh fish, and not a salt one." The boaster was silenced: nor was there one in the room who envied him his feelings.

A SIROCCO.

Friday last, the 17th inst., will be long remembered by the inhabitants of Santa Barbara, from the burning, blasting heat experienced that day, and the effects thereof; indeed, it is said that for the space of 30 years, nothing in comparison has been felt in this county, and, we doubt, in any other. The sun rose like a ball of fire on that day; but though quite warm, no inconvenience was felt thereby until 2 o'clock, P. M., when suddenly a blast of heated air swept through the streets, followed quickly by others, and shortly afterward the atmosphere became so intensely heated that no human being could withstand its force—all sought their dwellings and had to shut doors and windows, and remain for hours confined to their dwellings. The effects of such intense and unparalleled heat was demonstrated by the death of calves, rabbits, birds, etc., etc.; the trees were all scorched, and the fruit, such as pears and apples, literally roasted on the trees ere they fell to the ground, and the same as if they had been cast on live coals; but strange to say, there were only burned on one side—that is the direction from whence came the wind. All articles of metal became so heated that for hours nothing of the kind could be touched with the naked hands. The thermometer rose nearly to 120° in the shade, but near an open door, and during the prevalence of this properly called sirocco, the streets were filled with impenetrable clouds of fine dust, or pulverized earth. Speculations has been rife since to assign the cause of such a terrible phenomenon; but though we have heard of many plausible theories thereon, we have not been fully convinced yet: however that might be, we see the terrible effects all around us in blighted trees, ruined gardens, blasted fruit, and almost general destruction of the vegetable kingdom here.—Santa Barbara Gazette.

Unprecedented Heats.

HOT WEATHER.—In Marysville, on Monday the 20th, the mercury marked 108°; in Stockton 99°.

The mercury marked 110° on Wednesday. As the Sacramento stage came into town about 2 o'clock, one of the horses dropped exhausted and died in an hour. He had been driven but twelve miles.

FATAL SUN-STROKE.—On the 19th ult., a Dutchman, named Thatcher, was killed by a sun-stroke near the Oak Grove House, about thirty miles from Marysville.

At OROVILLE, on the 22d, the thermometer, on an elevated site in the shade, stood 114 degrees. A correspondent to Call writes: "We are literally being broiled. A lady of my acquaintance, yesterday afternoon, wishing, I presume, an extra luxury, attempted to bathe her feet, but found the water, from a well 4 feet deep, too hot to bear them in. Added to this is a dreadful vis tation of grasshoppers that have destroyed all that we were looking forward to to cool our parched lips. The luxurious peach orchards in this neighborhood are gone; cabbages are eaten by thousands, and the rest, so is everything in the vegetable line that would be grateful to the smell or taste, with a very few exceptions."

At SAN FRANCISCO, on the 22d, the thermometer at 12 o'clock, at Lawrence & Houseworth's store, on Clay street, stood at 83° in the shade. At the same hour, an instrument exposed to the full force of old Sol, marked 120°.

On WEDNESDAY, the 15th, the thermometer stood at 108° Farenhiet in the shade, in Jackson, and on Thursday, it was up to 112°.

On the 24th, at Rattlesnake, it was 120; at Maine Bar, on the Middle Fork of the American, 122 degrees. At Gold Hill, on Monday, 116, and on Wednesday, 120 degrees. On Thursday, in Auburn, it seemed a little cooler, from the fact of there being occasional gusts of wind; but 100 and 110 degrees was quite warrant against freezing.

AT SAN ANDREAS.—The Independent states that on Sunday, the mercury rose to 110 in the coolest part of the office; on Monday, to 108, standing at that point for over two hours; on Tuesday, by 11 A. M., it reached 106; by 1 P. M. 108; by 5 P. M., 110; on Wednesday, at 10 A. M. 108; at 2 P. M., 112; at 10 P. M., 92; on Thursday, 12 M., 110; on Friday, at 12 M., with a cool, brisk northwind blowing—by long odds, the most pleasant day of the week.

THE COLUMBIA NEWS informs us that the weather during the past week has been almost indurably hot, the thermometer ranging from 105 to 111 in the shade.

LETTERS OVERLAND.—3,707 letters were despatched by the Overland Mail which left last Friday.

CLIMATOLOGY.—The Napa Sun says that California is a great country. We believe it is so understood, and whatever it doeth is done up to the handle Whenever it is dry, it is the dryest dry: and when it is wet, it is the wettest wet ever one experienced.

SISTERS OF MERCY.—The late Fair for the benefit of this noble charity netted nearly $10,500. This will enable them to commence the erection of the Asy'um and Hospital to which the fund is devoted. It is contemplated to make a beginning during the early part of the summer. The buildings will be put up at Rincon Point.

THE WASTE OF WAR.—In the sixteenth years intervening between 1798 and 1815, the French army absorbed 5,556,000 men. The number raised by conscription for Napoleon's army, was 2,466,000 men. The army of 1812 was composed of recruits from eighteen to twenty years of age. Of a million and a quarter raised in 1813, only 100,000 remained in 1814. France, in addition to this loss of her citizens, had to pay one hundred and forty millions of dollars for the support of foreign garrisons. These figures show the cost of a war such as the Powers of Europe are now about entering into.

NEW WHEAT.—New wheat reached our markets as early as the 23d of June, this is earlier than usual; it sold at $2 30 per 100 pounds, making five cents in advance of last year. Reports of the wheat crop from every direction (except the Mokelumne district) are highly favorable. No complaints are made about smut. The farmers have effectually overcome this evil by soaking the seed in a solution of bluestone. For this happy discovery we are indebted to the successful experiments of French chemists.

Gideon DeVoir has a piece of land about one mile from the White Rock Springs, on the Placerville road, consisting of some four or five acres, on which was a crop of garden vegetables and also trees. It was surrounded by a ditch which was used for watering. Recently, it has been infested by grasshoppers innumerable, and it has been his practice to drive them towards the ditch, when they would fall in and be drowned. But before they met their fate they stripped the ground of every green thing. On looking at the ditch lately, good judges estimate that there were in it about two hundred bushels. This is a big story, but the owner of the land is willing to make affidavit of the fact. So says the Union.

GRASSHOPPERS.—Grasshoppers are destroying a vast amount of property in Tehama county. Fruit trees, potatoes, corn, onions, melons, etc., stand no show at all.

They also made their appearance on Bear river, and are working great destruction.

THE CHINESE.—Sacramento people are complaining of Chinese nuisances, and are endeavoring to get rid of them.

A California lioness was lately trapped alive in El Dorado county. She measures nearly ten feet from the muzzle to the end of the tail. So says the Observer.

YOUNG AMERICA SHAFT.—We learn says the Nevada Democrat, that the proprietors of the Young America Shaft completed their main tunnels last week, and have commenced drifting and washing the gravel. With three men drifting, from Thursday morning until twelve o'clock Saturday night, they took out $4,060. This company has been at an immense expense—between $20,000 and $30,000—in opening their diggings.

FIVE GENERATIONS REPRESENTED.—Professor Stevelly, of Belfast, writes to the Athenæum of June 22d:—"Yesterday, the lady of Wm. H. Patterson, Esq., son of my friend Robert Patterson, Esq., the naturalist, presented him with a daughter. The child has now a great grand-mother, Mrs. Armstrong, living in Mount Pleasant square, above one hundred years old, in full health and enjoyment of all her faculties. The little stranger has also two great-grandmothers living, one great-grandfather, two grandfathers, and one grandmother; thus presenting an instance which, as far as my experience reaches, is unique, of five generations in one family all living at the same time."

SINGULAR EGG.—A California hen at Napa, lately laid a double egg; that is, one egg was imbedded in the other.

MINING ACCIDENTS.—Several mining accidents are reported from different directions.

SHIPMENT OF GOLD.—The amount of gold shipped from California from April 11, 1849 to Dec. 31, 1858, amounts to $418,822,360; about 29,411 pounds weight. This does not include what passengers carried in their pockets.

EXHORBITANT.—A gentleman who sent his wife to the Sulphur springs for the recovery of her health, and the bill against him for about eight day's board for himself and wife was $84.

BRUTAL.—It is supposed that about Red Bluffs there exists a secret society, who kill any Indian of whom they can get hold.

SCHOOL FUND APPROPRIATION.—Thirty-nine thousand five hundred and ninety-one dollars will be distributed, at the rate of one dollar for each scholar, to all the School Districts in the State, so that the total number of children reported from the various counties is 39,591.

PROGRESS.—The Boston Herald of a late date relates the following almost incredible story:

About two months since the wife of Jacob Abbott, in Golconda, C. W., presented her husband with eight pledges of affection at one birth. These children survived until six weeks old, when two of them sickened and died. The remaining six are living and thriving finely. The whole eight were very small specimens of humanity, when ushered into the world, as might have been expected. This statement is literally true. It is vouched for by numbers of respectable witnesses, who saw the children.

LARGE HOG.—The Red Bluff Beacon says that S. A. Griggs, of Colusa county, has a hog on his ranch, eight months old, weighing 220 pounds, the grandsire of which weighed 1,400 pounds, when full grown.

Shochat.

Mr. Benzion Rosenthal, a gentleman highly respected in this city, in the small circle of his acquaintances, has, for a number of years, performed the function of Shochet in several congregations of Europe.

His certificates from the different Rabbis, all speak in such terms of his character, as bespeak him always to have been able to secure the respect of those who know how to appreciate and to respect character.

Being desirous to perform the function of Shochat in this city, Mr. Rosenthal evinced, last Sunday, the 5th, at our office, in the presence of a several of gentlemen whom he invited to be present, his thorough familiarity with the Dinim required to be known to Shochtim—he also proved himself an adept in the mechanical portion of the functions required for his office, in a more than ordinary degree.

Considering the high moral qualifications as also the practical and ritual proficiency of Mr. Rosenthal, we think him a gentleman highly deserving of the confidence to be reposed in him as Shochet.

LANDSCAPE GARDENING.—J. R. Lowe, the Landscape Gardener, at San Jose, has only three acres of land embraced within his homestead, yet so thoroughly is it cultivated that there may be found upon it 8,000 apple trees, 1,700 pear trees, 3,500 plums, 400 apricots, 200 nectarines, 4,000 peach, 2,500 cherry, 1,000 gooseberry, 400 currant, 1,000 foreign grapes, 1,600 Anger's quince, and an orchard of 160 bearing peach trees, 196 apple, 40 pears, and a large assortment of berries.

DISTRESS.—A respectable old man was arrested on Saturday, being charged with having stolen twelve loaves of bread. He plead through his counsel, the starving condition of his children as his only palliation for the act. A sad commentary upon the unwritten book of life in a great city.

BIESTA'S MAP OF THE SEAT OF WAR.—The intellegent reader will neccessarily want to follow the marches and counter marches of the contending armies in Europe. Those who wish to be supplied with a beautiful map of the seat of war, will find an excellently executed map at the publishers, Tedtrico Biesta, 129 Montaomery street

THE SONORA HERALD.—We sincerely welcome the reappearance of a highly valuable exchange—the Sonora Herald. This classic weekly, publised by Mr. James O'Sullivan, is, with the exception of the "Daily Alta," the oldest paper in this state, and decidely, one of the best.

Owing to a dissolution of partnership, the paper did not appear for three weeks. We welcome the speedily resumed publication, and wish it a long and successful continuance, which but few publications in this state deserve more than the "Herald."

THE HOME JOURNAL.—This weekly contains a fund of highly valuable matter; its object is to be useful by awakening its reader to the consciousness of the inner man. Its articles convey knowledge, of the highest interest to man as a rational and moral agent. The paper ought to be in every house. The last number has appeared in a more handable form.

HUTCHINGS' MAGAZIE.—The July number of this magazine has been laid on our table. The cuts possesses more than usual spirit, being life scenes from San Francisco to Sacramento city. The reading contents of this number will be found interesting.

The following letter which emphatically speaks for itself, was written by the Dean of the Faculty of the Philadelphia College of Medicine—to the editors of the Pacific Medical and Surgical Journal, San Francisco, for publication:

PHILADELPHIA, January 17th, 1859.

To the editors of the Pacific Medical and Surgical Journal—Gentlemen: My attention has been called to an article in the December number of your journal, in regard to the ad eundem degree granted by the Philadelphia College of Medicine to Dr. L J Czapkay When the application of the degree was made to the Faculty, it was accompanied by affidavits and testimonials to the effect that Dr. Czapkay was a regular graduate M D of the University of Pesth, had served as a surgeon in the Hungarian army and was a regular practitioner of medicine. On the strength of these the degree was granted. The ad eundem degree, as its name implies, is conferred on graduates only, and gives us new privileges. Had there been the slightest suspicion of irregularity, the application would have been refused. By inserting this in your journal you will do an act of justice to the College, and confer a favor on

Yours, very respectfully.

Dr. L. J. CZAPKAY'S PRIVATE MEDIcal and Surgical Institute is on Sacramento street, below Montgomery, opposite the Pacific Mail Steamship Company's Office, San Francisco The Doctor offers free consultation, and asks no remuneration unless he effects a cure.

The Family.

Good Night, Mother.

The following lines were suggested on reading an account of a little child, who, when dying, thought she was going to sleep, and bid her mother "Good night."

The mother hung o'er her budding babe,
And watched the vengeful strife
Of the poison that coursed her purple veins
With its swiftly fading life
And the fear that marked her throbbing brow,
And shone from her strained eye,
Revealed to well that the stealthy foot
Of Death was treading nigh.

The babe looked up with a trustful smile,
To the mother all distraught,
And thought the dimness that veiled its eye
Was the shadow the evening brought;
She twined her arms round the mother's neck,
And her smile grew still more bright,
As she sweetly kissed, and faintly breathed,
"Good night! mamma—good night!"

Then Death came in and placed his "seal
Upon the tomb of hope,"
And the mother saw the eyelids close,
Never again to ope;
And her tears fell fast on the faded cheek,
And stained its pearly white,
While echo brought to her wounded ear
Her babe's last fond "good night."

Oh! may we live so guiltless—true—
That when our summons comes
To join the throngs who peaceful rest
In their eternal homes,—
No thought of sin shall in that hour
Our guilty souls affright;
But, like the innocent one, in death,
Whisper a calm "good night!"

THE SICK CHILD.—"A child," says Mr. Abott, "a short time since was taken ill with that dangerous disorder, the croup. It was a child most ardently beloved, and ordinarily very obedient. But in this state of uneasiness and pain, he refused to take the medicine which it was needful without delay to administer. The father finding him resolute, immediately punished his sick and suffering son; under these circuminances, and fearing that his son might soon die, it must have been a most severe trial to the father; but the consequences was, that the child was taught that sickness was no excuse for disobedience: and while his sickess continued, he promptly took whatever medicine was perscribed, and was patient and submissive. Soon the child was well. Does any one say this was cruel? It was one of the noblest acts of kindness which could have been performed. If the father had shrunk from duty it is by no means improbable that the life of the child would have been the forfeit."

BE CAREFUL WITH MATCHES.—Lucifer matches often ignite by being stepped upon (by friction). They never ought to be allowed to lie about the floor. Fifty or sixty acres of wheat were burned, near the Coyote river, Santa Clara county, on Thursday afternoon. Some one had carelessly dropped a box of matches on the road side, and the intense heat of the sun, with the assistance probably, of a mischievous gopher, caused them to ignite and set fire to the wheat, which is at present as combustible as tinder.—Morning Call.

BEWARE OF FLUID LAMPS.—A fire occurred in Sacramento on 18th street, near B., on Friday last, caused by the explosion of a spirit lamp. A Frenchman named Bossier Lafrance, his grandchild and a daughter were severely burned.

Great Reduction in Prices!!

HAVING GREATLY INCREASED MY facilities for producing Good Pictures, I have determined to reduce my prices to such rates as will defy competition. The styles to which I have been selling for two dollars will hereafter be one dollar, and the same reduction will be made on all other sizes, except the smallest.

Having arranged my business so that I will personally superintend the operating department, and having had over eighteen years experience as a practical operator, I think I can with confidence guaranty that my patrons will obtain as good pictures as can be obtained in any part of the world. I have introduced one improvement which other artists have not adopted, of great practical benefit to persons who have found it difficult to obtain a good expression in their likeness. My sitters are placed before a large mirror while their pictures are forming, thereby enabling them to obtain just the position and expression desired.

Pictures on Leather, the same style for which I was awarded the first premium, small size, $1; second size, $2.

N. B.—My rooms are closed on Sundays, whether others keep open or not.
